Coventry, England, Feb. 19 (AP)—Fourteen persons were killed today when a British airliner and an RAF training plane collided and crashed in flames near here.

British European Airways said six passengers and four crew members died in the twin-engine airliner. Four RAF airmen were killed in the trainer, an Anson bomber, the Air Ministry said.

Police investigating the collision, over the outskirts of this war-blitzed midlands city, said there were no survivors.

First official reports said there were several Americans among the victims, but officials of British European Airways said there was no indication that any of the passengers was from the United States. The airliner was on a scheduled flight from London to Renfrew, Scotland.

The planes crashed in flames at the rear of a hospital. A police constable and a fireman who saw the collision said wreckage was strewn over a wide area.

The airliner was described as a Dakota, the British name for the American civilian transport, DC-3.

Names of the victims were withheld temporarily by British European Airways. The bodies were taken to Exhall hospital.

INFANTRY UNIT IS INSTRUCTED ON M-1 RIFLE

M-Sgt. John F. Reus and M-Sgt. James A. Parks, of the 2412 ASU, Gettysburg college, assistant instructors for the local ROTC, presented instruction on the functioning of the M-1 rifle Friday evening at the regular meeting of Company E, 315th Infantry, a local reserve outfit, held in the Lentz Legion post home, Baltimore street.

They used in their teaching rifles and training aids provided through the courtesy of Col. Alfred McKenney, professor of military science and tactics at Gettysburg college.

Capt. Donald Sheely, commanding officer of Company E, outlined a new table of organization for the local unit which indicated that all enlisted members of the outfit will become in time, sergeants of one type or another. Under the new set up the company is allowed one sergeant, first grade (first sergeant); five sergeants second grade (which replaces the technical sergeant rating); 17 sergeants third grade, corresponding to staff sergeant; two sergeants fourth grade (former sergeant) and one sergeant fifth grade (apparently comparing to corporal).

Plan Summer Camp
A 14-day summer camp for the 79th Infantry, of which Company E is a part will be held from June 19 to July 3, the captain said, adding that the dates are tentative and may change. The camp will be held at Indiantown Gap. Training there will include 28 hours of basic subjects, 22 hours of weapons and 20 hours of tactical training.

Members will be trained on the weapons that would be assigned to them according to the table of organization, Sheely said.

Dale K. Smith, 236 East Middle street, and Donald Weaver, 17 Chambersburg street, were signed as members of the company at its session Friday.

The next meeting of the organization will be held March 4 when the instruction will be on recoilless weapons.

The Adams County Soil Conservation District field men have a tremendous amount of work ahead of them this year, according to the annual report of the county district. The report also shows that the four men employed by the local district also completed a considerable amount of work during 1948.

Here And There News Collected At Random

The following interesting reference to "The Isle of Que," Elsie Singmaster's recent book, was published in the January edition of the State Department of Internal Affairs' magazine:

Another story of Pennsylvania life has been added to the recently published long list of that type—and older boys and girls will find this new tale by Elsie Singmaster very good reading. Drawing upon her native background, this popular author sets her story of a delightful family on a peninsula in the Susquehanna River near Selinsgrove, called "Isle of Que." Mother Yoder and her 11 children appeal to the reader from the beginning.

Responsibility falls upon Tim, aged 15, when the two older boys march off to "do" their part in the war. With a mother and sister to take care of, the vegetable garden to handle, and the constant threat of a rising river to guard against, the lad had plenty of work cut out for him. But he managed to fit into his busy schedule trips on the river, long talks with the old river-man who had taught him all his river lore.

Dealers Estimate Mild Winter Will Effect Saving Of 30 Per Cent In Fuel Consumption Here

Gettysburg residents should save about 30 per cent on their fuel bill due to the warm open winter, according to local coal and fuel oil dealers, but the dealers confess they can produce no figures to back up their guess.

Coal men point out that many residents purchase their year's supply during the summer or early fall, hence dealers will not be able to find out how much fuel was saved until they refill the bins again next summer. However, much less coal will be needed they predict and that will be the answer as to how much fuel was saved by the fact that furnaces have been banked more frequently this winter than they have for years, due to the mild weather.

Weather Above Normal
The weather reports give an indication of how much fuel has been saved. During September, October, November, December and January, the weather was a total of 15.5 degrees warmer than normal, which means many warm days and few cold ones. Last year, during the winter of 1947-48, the thermometer showed the months, for the most part, colder than normal, with corresponding increases in fuel bills.

One local fuel oil dealer reported that actually he has sold more oil this year than last season. But he credited that to new accounts and said that one home, to his knowledge, has used about 30 per cent less fuel so far as compared to the previous winter.

William Snyder, Helen Durstewitz, Constance Lingenfelter, Mary Magdalene Stauffer, and Eleanor Shultzbach.

The twelve local women who have served as sponsors for the new chapter will be installed as associate members of the fraternity.

Delegates from other Alpha Xi Delta chapters at Bethany college, University of West Virginia, Allegheny college, University of Pennsylvania, University of Maryland, Penn State and West Virginia Wesleyan are expected here for the week-end events.

The formal installation banquet will be held at the Hotel Gettysburg this evening at 7 o'clock and Sunday from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. there will be a tea and reception at the Phi Gamma Delta house on the campus.

9-DAY TRANSIT STRIKE COSTS PHILADELPHIA 60 MILLIONS

Philadelphia, Feb. 19 (AP)—The nine-day transit strike already has cost Philadelphia's business and industry an estimated $60,000,000—without counting today.

The Chamber of Commerce figures the loss at $10,000,000 for each full working day.

To the 11,000 strikers the tie-up of all subways, buses and trolleys in America's third largest city has meant a total salary loss of about $600,000.

To Send SOS to CIO
To the Philadelphia Transportation company: nearly $1,750,000 in total revenue.

The CIO-Transport Workers union hints a long strike—unless wage demands are met. It plans to ask the National CIO to join the fight if the walkout lasts until Monday.

Michael Quill, international president of the CIO-Transport Workers union, said he'd send the SOS to Alan Heywood, organization director of the CIO. "He'll put the entire weight of the National CIO behind this fight," Quill declared, adding "the situation is going from bad to worse."

The 11,000 strikers rejected a seven-cent-an-hour wage increase offered by the Philadelphia Transportation company.

Quill said: "We'll take nothing less than 13 cents."

Need More Negotiations
The union originally asked 25 cents. PTC's first offer was two cents, then boosted it one penny more. Thus the battle of the contract has cut the wage difference from 22 cents to six. Workers now earn $1.09 to $1.63 an hour.

The 37-member executive board of the union's local 234 says more negotiations are necessary. It wants to keep talking with PTC officials until settlement's reached. Local President Andrew Kaelin thinks management can increase its wage offer and grant better working conditions. Mayor Bernard Samuel pleaded with the strikers yesterday to accept the PTC offer. The Mayor hinted it was the best that could be made.

Would Mean Bankruptcy
PTC President Charles Ebert said flatly a higher wage increase would bankrupt the company.

Quill commented angrily at a news conference last night: "We won't go back to work for a seven-cent increase. We'll keep this strike going—even if it takes several months."

The shirt-sleeved union leader, his Irish brogue bristling, accused the mayor of going "behind our backs to appeal to the workers to return to work."

Travel woes eased partially for foot-weary residents of America's third largest city. Subways, buses and trolleys normally carry 3,200,000 passengers daily.

Saturday mainly is a shopping day with most office and industrial firms closed. Commuter trains, 2,000 taxis and some 400,000 autos and trucks carried Philadelphia's millions to their destinations.

The average person doesn't think the tie-up is so funny today. It was a novelty the first day despite the inconvenience.

A comedy, the story relates their tribulations in overcoming conflicts of religion, tradition and culture. The play involves the young couple in three marriages, one by civil ceremony, one by Jewish rite and one by Catholic rite.

ACHESON READY FOR FINAL TALKS

Washington, Feb. 19 — Secretary of State Acheson was reported about ready today for final talks on the proposed North Atlantic Alliance, after an "encouraging" session with the Senate Foreign Relations committee.

The "encouraging" label came from Senator Lodge (R-Mass.) one of the committee members who spent three hours with Acheson behind closed doors yesterday, suggesting ways to get around a delicate spot in the treaty's wording.

The secretary may lay before representatives of western European countries and Canada next week a proposed agreement expected to offer a promise that the United States will take measures to help maintain the security of the North Atlantic area.

But there also will be a reminder that the United States cannot go to war until Congress says so.

Acheson's associates reported that he felt some progress had been made in his talk with the Senators. They said he was "highly pleased" and saw in the session fresh indications that there is no difference of opinion over the pact's objectives. The meeting gave 11 of the 13 committee members their first look at the wording of the proposed agreement. They were told that it was "top secret" and were cautioned against talking about it.

MISSING BOY NOT INJURED

Reading, Pa., Feb. 19 (AP)—Three-year-old William Abbott, found unharmed after being missing for 21 hours, ate a hearty breakfast today, apparently none the worse for his night of exposure.

The little boy, subject of a search by more than 1,000 volunteers, was found yesterday lying face down in a clearing on the side of Mt. Laurel, more than a mile from his Laurel-dale home.

The lad's father, Arthur P. Abbott, said he believes the boy might have been carried away from his home. But Abbott added:

"I don't know who could have done it. I don't know of any enemies I have."

Billy showed no signs of exposure and when rescuers started to carry him home he told them: "I'm pretty heavy to carry. Let me walk."

HEAVY SNOWS SEEN AS BOON TO '49 CROPS

Chicago, Feb. 19 (AP)—The west's heavy snows have been bitter medicine for livestock, but it may do a world of good for this year's crops.

And, the experts say, cattle and sheep which emerge gaunt and bony from winter's rigors should find lush foraging. Grasses and hay should thrive on ample soil moisture from the snows. The pasture prospects were poor in many grazing areas after last fall's drought. And lack of snow this winter would have left skimpy grazing this spring and summer.

A survey of states most affected by the severe snow and cold showed little worry about next season's prospects for wheat and other grain crops which are grown predominantly in the plains.

Fear Freezes Later

The chief worries are that freezes of long duration may come after the thaw sets in, and that floods may be so extensive this spring that large acreages of fall-seeded grains may be drowned or washed away. An extremely wet spring would delay planting of corn and other crops, too.

Ice sheets on the ground after crops have sprouted could kill off young grains in a few days. There is some concern now over the effect of ice beneath southern Minnesota snow on the legume crop there.

Gradual melting of the snow would have the best effect on soil moisture reserves, the state crop experts say. But, in some of the more southerly areas of the plains, surface and sub-surface water is already ample. This is the case in Oklahoma. Most of Missouri and Kansas also have a good start, due to sufficient fall rains and absorption of earlier winter moisture.

Plenty Of Water

The heavy mountain snows are good news for such states as Utah and Colorado which benefit from the slower runoff of the thick, high altitude snow deposits. A Utah observer said excellent grazing conditions should develop there. In Colorado, where a record 3,134,000 acres of winter wheat have been seeded, development prospects were reported fine.

The mountain surfeit of snow also assures full reservoirs for crops in the west coast states, particularly California which depends heavily on dam stored water. There'll be plenty of water to operate the hydro-electric plants which supply most west coast power.

Shipyard Will Lay Off 800 Men Soon

Philadelphia, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Philadelphia Naval shipyard will lay off 800 men by July 1, the Navy announced yesterday.

The economy move is necessary because of a curtailment of work for the yard, a Navy spokesman explained. The cut will affect all trades, he added.

Rear Admiral James L. Kauffman, commandant of the Fourth Naval district, said actually only about half of the 800 would be directly laid off. The other half, he said, would be accounted for in the normal turnover in that those who quit will not be replaced.

young boy, overcoming his own fears, met the challenge is a thrilling one which both Pennsylvania boys and girls will find inspiring.

As to the Isle of Que, the story is told that it once came into the ownership of the great frontiersman and mediator between the whites and the Indians, Conrad Weiser, under very interesting circumstances.

Weiser and Shikellamy, the great ambassador of the Six Nations to the whites, were traveling together toward Sunbury along the east bank of the Susquehanna opposite the Isle of Que, Weiser carrying an unusually handsome rifle greatly admired by the Indian chieftain.

They stopped to rest, when the wily Shikellamy said to Weiser:

"Conrad Weiser's friend Shikellamy dreamed a dream about his friend Conrad Weiser last night."

"What," asked Weiser, "did Conrad Weiser's friend Shikellamy dream of Conrad Weiser?"

"Conrad Weiser's friend Shikellamy dreamed," replied the Indian, with a sly twinkle of the eye, "that Shikellamy's friend Conrad Weiser gave to Shikellamy as a present the rifle he carries."

Without a word Weiser handed over the rifle, saying: "Shikellamy's friend Conrad Weiser presents this rifle to his friend Shikellamy."

There was silence for a time as the Red Man admired the handsome weapon. The Conrad Weiser spoke, knowing full well the Indian ambassador had full powers to convey Indian lands: "Shikellamy's friend Conrad Weiser had a dream last night about his friend Shikellamy."

The Indian, in turn, asked: "What did Shikellamy's friend Conrad Weiser dream of his friend Shikellamy?"

Came the reply: "Shikellamy's friend Conrad Weiser dreamed that his friend Shikellamy gave to him ownership of that beautiful island yonder," pointing to the Isle of Que.

Pondering a moment the Indian said: "Conrad Weiser's friend Shikellamy gives as a present the island to his friend Conrad Weiser."

Then, after a moment's reflection he added: "And Shikellamy dreams no more of his friend Conrad Weiser."

Hanover Knocks Warriors Out Of Race With 42-38 Triumph; Trojans Clinch Sixth Title

Gettysburg high school's championship hopes in the South Penn basketball league were definitely shattered Friday evening when Hanover upset the Warriors 42-38 in a thrilling game at Hanover.

Chambersburg, by virtue of throttling Mechanicsburg 65-15 while Gettysburg and Hershey were being defeated, clinched its sixth successive league championship. The Trojans, beaten only by Steelton in a non-league game this year, meet the Warriors here Tuesday in the final home game of the year for Gettysburg.

The Gettysburg-Hanover game was a nip and tuck affair throughout with the Nighthawks spurring in the final minute to clinch the contest.

Coach Forney's lads trailed, 30-27, going into the final quarter. Chubb Grover opened the quarter with a goal and Donaldson retaliated with a twin-pointer. Westerdahl netted one of two free tosses. Wendler caged a charity toss and then Sachs knotted the score at 33-33 with four and one-half minutes remaining on a foul and a goal.

Lead See-Saws
Bushman put the Warriors ahead on a foul. With three minutes remaining both teams missed opportunities. Gruver sent the Nighthawks ahead, 35-34, with a goal with two minutes remaining. The Hawks began to stall with a minute and a half remaining. On a double foul Gruver converted while Sachs missed his chance. Westerdahl came through to tie the count at 36-36 with 50 seconds remaining. Successive goals by Rightmire, Wendler and a long toss by Yost put the clincher on the game for Hanover, Westerdahl tabbing a goal shortly before the contest ended.

Gettysburg started the game in great style and took a 12-7 lead in the first period on a pair of goals by Westerdahl, a single by Bushman and a goal and two fouls by Sachs and another pair of fouls by Eisenhart.

Hanover surged back in the second stanza and surged ahead, 20-19, at half time through a well balanced attack and a streak of nine straight points after the Forney-men had led 18-11, midway in the period.

Again in the third period the score was deadlocked at 20-20 early on Donaldson's free toss but the home team surged out in front, 30-27, at the end of the round.

Jayvees Upset
Donaldson paced the Maroon assault with 13 points, while Westerdahl tabbed 11. Wendler and C. Gruver netted 12 and 11, respectively, for the victors.

The Maroon scrubs trailed throughout to drop the preliminary game 35-22. Coach Shoemaker's charges were limited to but three field goals in the first half and were held safely at bay in the second half.

Harrisburg, Feb. 19 (AP)—Gov. James H. Duff is suffering from an attack of laryngitis. The Pennsylvania Chief Executive is barely able to talk. He cut his engagement schedule short Thursday afternoon on the advice of a physician.

Faces Dickinson Here Tonight

Henry "Hank" Beiber, star sophomore guard on the Gettysburg college basketball team, will be at his regular post tonight when the Bullets meet Dickinson on the local floor. Beiber, an all-state selection while at Lower Merion high school, is a long shot specialist as well as the key play-director in the Bullets attack.

Opening the double-header attraction tonight will be the clash between the freshmen teams at 7 o'clock.

At a track meet at West Point last week, starter Jack Lavelle had to disqualify one sprinter in a three-man heat (two to qualify) because of false starts. . . . A kid from Harvard immediately put up an argument that, since he couldn't fail to qualify, he didn't need to run. . . . Lavelle insisted it was necessary, even if he only jogged, and that's what the boy did. . . . As the athlete returned to the starting line, Lavelle sagely advised him: "Son, you'd better get into that Harvard law school without wasting any time. You're prepared."

SPORTSMENTION
Casey Stengel says he will give third baseman Bobby Brown a trial at first base, where he already has Babe Young, Jack Phillips, Joe Collins and Nick Kryhoski as willing candidates. Anybody want to bet the Yankees' first baseman won't be Tommy Henrich? . . . Capt. Cecil Boyd-Rochford, noted British horse trainer, is taking home one of the "overcheck" bits used on Citation so it can be copied. Presumably he knows there are other reasons why Citation wins. . . . Duquesne's Duddy Moore, who has earned a claim to basketball's "Rookie Coach" crown, still hopes to maneuver his team into the N.C.A.A. tournament.

New York, Feb. 19 (AP)—European sports fans apparently are just learning that hockey isn't hockey without a few punches for good measure. . . . When a Canadian player took the butt end of a Czech player's stick in his ribs and retaliated in the customary manner by taking a belt at his annoyance, International Hockey officials threatened to ban him from the world championships.

The next night the customers broke down the doors trying to get into the game. . . . Of course, that may be merely because they don't get many chances to see good fights in Sweden. Remember Olle Tandberg? . . . Although Missouri State Athletic commission jobs pay only $1,800 a year, Gov. Forrest Smith has had more than 60 applications for the three positions he has to fill. . . . Seems business men aren't interested in the dough as much as those ringside passes for fights and wrestling bouts. . . . In some other places, the commissioners seem to get all the ringside seats.

THE LAST STRAW
This tale sounds too perfect to be true, but it is. Ernie Fortner, Joplin, Mo., golf pro was on the first tee at Phoenix when he was called to the telephone (it says). Entering the clubhouse, he slipped and sprained an arm. . . . The message was that his house in Joplin had burned down. . . . Ernie started to drive home, but when he hit the mountains, the highway patrol notified him he couldn't do much at home. Fortner rejoined the touring pros at Tucson. . . . Despite the injured arm, Ernie fired a 67 on the first round—and found he was tied for 19th place.

ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENT
Occupants of room 317, Lyons hall, at Notre Dame are Bob Williams, likely first-string football quarterback; Marty O'Connor, starting basketball forward, and Val Muscato, second in the Michigan relays "600." They're all sophomores.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Feb. 19 (AP)—Hottest rumor heard lately (and one that's a little hard to believe) is that Adolph Rupp will take his Kentucky squad to Cincinnati next season to play in the Basketball Association of America. . . . What makes this seem possible is that the Wildcat stars now are seniors; that Cincinnati, with a brand new arena, is a natural spot for a B.A.A. team, and that some of the coaches already in the league think they haven't a chance to land Wah Wah Jones, Alex Groza, Ralph Beard and Co. . . . Otherwise the bidding would be terrific because Kentucky doesn't come in any club's territory. . . . Under the B.A.A. system of "territorial rights," each club has first call on any player within a 40-mile radius of its home city. And that accounts for the best of the "big inside men" that most of the eastern teams need.

Today's Talk

SHOULD THEY COME BACK

I was reading recently about the times of Shakespeare and the tough time that he had. I was informed that he spent much of his time in litigation, but it couldn't have worried him too much, for it was a Herculean task to write all those plays that he did. He had a few friends no doubt, but he understood human beings as no other writer. Wouldn't he gasp at the knowledge that his books had sold by the million, and that he was known and quoted all over the civilized world, should he suddenly drop in on us at this date?

I wonder what George Washington would think of his America if he should come back for a visit? Washington city and Radio City would undoubtedly give him something to think about. And I wonder what he would think of the Marshall Plan and of his successor, Mr. Truman? Certainly his Farewell Address would need to be revised to fit the present circumstances. But would he want to do it?

If Edgar Allan Poe should come back, I wonder what he would think of the poets who have succeeded him? And I wonder if people would treat him today as they did in his lifetime? Would he be so grossly misjudged as when he walked the streets of Baltimore and New York? Wouldn't he be surprised that his first little pamphlet publication of poems had been sold for $20,000? He—who could hardly scrape up the price of a meal at the time of publication.

What would Lincoln think of the Western foreign policy? We are sure that he would emphasize anew his statement of "malice toward none; with charity for all." And moral rearmament would be his theme. He would be saddened at the world's war fever and the deadly means now invented for the killing of human beings. But his plea "that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth" would still thrill the world today as when he first uttered those immortal words.

These great of the earth can only come back to us in the record and deeds of their lives once lived. We are the custodians of their ideals. The world's heritage is what they were and did. If they could but speak today their message would simply be to—carry on!

QUESTIONS FOR A NARROW MIND

If your dwelling were on fire, would you bother to inquire what the creed of those who came to put out the searing flame?

If your little one were ill, would you ask for more than skill from the surgeon at the bed? Would you care what creed he said?

You're in business! At your shop, do your customers who stop with this query: "Ere you buy, do you think the same as I?"

Run your list of friendships through, knowing all they mean to you, and though differ as you may, is there one you'd throw away?

The trouble with most unreliable drivers, like the car's electrical gadgets, is that they are not well grounded.

Facts About Icy Driving

Some of the high points brought out by recent studies of the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards is that when driving with bald tires on glare ice speed should be cut to the range between 12 and 20 miles per hour. A point not considered by the majority of drivers is that wetness in combination with ice or snow adds a special hazard, wet ice being twice as slippery as the dry type found at lower temperatures. Interesting, too, is the fact that tests show sand on glare ice is only slightly better than chains used on rear wheels. Synthetic rubber treads continue to show poorer traction than those of natural rubber. At 20 miles an hour the former takes 197 feet to stop on glare ice whereas natural rubber tires help the car stop within 169 feet. That's a long way from the 88 foot stop with chains, nuisance as they are.

Relay to the Rescue

This is right off the motor wire and to me it makes sense: Electrical experts have been worried recently by the growing tendency to make the ignition switch carry a lot of extra loads. On one current car it controls the directional signals, the starter relay, the electrical windshield wipers, the backing light, gauges and radio. It's no wonder the switch often wears out and affects the coil adversely on the way. So here's the remedy: You just install one of those single relays used for headlights and horns. The ignition switch then handles only about one-third of an ampere and is spared all the extra load.

Useful to Know

That erratic operation of the engine may be due to looseness of the bolt that holds the distributor octane selector plate. It has been found that this bolt wears, allowing just enough change to alter the timing. Leakage of oil around the front end of the crankshaft doesn't mean that the front main bearing is worn but simply that the crankshaft timing gear isn't tight against the thrust washer. The fan pulley will also be found not tight enough against the timing gear.

Some of the household waxes are not at all suited for use on a car. They are too soft for good results. A good wax for the car's body should be hard enough so that you need to use a damp soft cloth for applying it.

Mechanic Joe Speaking

"Blame the motor thermostat for a lot of the overheating this winter. I do not mean that the thermostat is necessarily faulty. It's just that it is the wrong heat type. "Many a thermostat was selected for use with ethylene glycol base anti-freeze. Not able to secure this the owner puts alcohol into the system without any regard for the need for changing to a thermostat that opens at around 150 degrees Fahrenheit. Sometimes I have found that owners installed a 170 degree stat in order to get more warmth from the hot water heater. This is all right if the anti-freeze is the right kind for higher temperature motor operation."

How's Your Starting?

This would be an appropriate time to review some of the pointers I've been passing along on the theme of better cold weather cranking. One that will pay off nicely just now is cleaning the spark plugs. Chances are they will be a bit on the sooty side because of so many short runs at low operating temperature. Fouled plug points slow down the start, call for increased choking and invite those stalls which extend the warming-up period. All this acts like a vicious circle to make matters worse. So let's take out those plugs and save trouble.

Hand Brake Does It

Do you notice that when the hand brake is left on for any length of time the brakes seem to have air in them? That's exactly what happens if the car is one with the hand brake operating through the rear service brakes instead of on the propeller shaft. With the pressure removed from the two rear wheel cylinder cups, due to the mechanical operation of the rear brake shoes by the hand brake control, atmospheric brake cylinders if the cups are not tight.

The better way to meet this condition is to replace the rear brake cylinder cups. Meantime you can save trouble by not using the hand brake for such long periods. Leave the car in gear where possible or block the wheels.

Mutual Assistance

The other night when driving in a heavy rain over a winding road in the mountains I was fortunate to have another car ahead to tip me off should the road surface become icy. This convenience I justified because it was quite obvious that my headlights were helping the driver of the other car to find his way. You know how headlights on a rainy night so often seem inadequate. Thus the addition of my car's lights provided a safer path. We drove this way for some 20 miles. I do not seem to recall a more effective case of cooperation.

Right Off the Hood

A new scientific fluid ought to end one worry for the motor traveler by removing the unsightly shine on clothing. . . . Then there is the device that warns you when the coolant level in the radiator is down to the danger point. . . . A new liquid de-icer for windshields not only removes ice already on the glass but reduces the tendency for new ice to form, and won't harm the car's finish. . . . The industry is glad to see a new undercoating which doesn't have a combustible solvent to add risks during application. . . . Chances for a rear-engine American passenger car seem less likely than at any time since post-war cars were first discussed.

Tread Tells the Story

Whether that excessive tire tread wear is or is not due to under-inflation is easily determined. Here there is little room for controversy, for if the tire is underinflated naturally the sides of the tread will come into abnormal contact with the road and will wear faster than the center. With underinflation you would never get spotty wear or wear on just one shoulder. Overinflation is equally easy to detect. It is found where the center of the tread is worn, while the shoulders show little or no wear. This just means that the wire is riding too high on its tread.

What's Your Trouble?

Q. There is a most baffling drumming noise in my car. It appears to be around the motor, but can't find anything loose. We have checked the air cleaner.—J. L. B.

A. How about a loose hood?

Q. I have a lot of trouble getting the engine to warm up, although it starts easily enough. The top speed of the car is way down to around 40 miles per hour. I have checked the timing and find it is fully advanced. Any ideas?—Wm. L.

A. I'd suspect the fuel pump. An engine uses more fuel during the warm-up and at higher speeds.

Q. What would cause a whistling noise in the engine?—W. T. G.

A. Is this constant or just when you are accelerating? A constant whistle probably means that the distributor shaft needs lubricating.

DODGE TO INTRODUCE NEW KIND OF CAR BUILT FOR TODAY'S BIGGER TALLER AMERICANS

Daring New Dodge establishes new trend . . . provides more head room, elbow room and leg room, at the same time decreasing outside dimensions. Extreme lines, uncomfortable seats and cramped interiors have no place in Dodge thinking.

Army statistics revealed that the G.I.'s of World War II averaged 1 1/2" taller than the Doughboys of World War I. The same statistics showed they were also heavier and more active.

DODGE SAID "NO" TO THIS . . . repairing dented or torn fenders it sure to be costly when fenders are formed right into great masses of sheet metal. Now look below and see why Dodge owners don't have this worry.

DOWN GO REPAIR COSTS! No costly-to-repair, massive sheet metal fender sections in new Dodge. Fender unit is bolted (not welded) to body; easily removed, repaired and even replaced, if necessary, at reasonable cost.

"BODY-CRAMPING ROOF LINES MUST GO," said Dodge! Army physical exams revealed that our wartime generation was bigger, taller and more active. A car with more interior space—not less—is the goal Dodge engineers achieved.

DODGE STARTED WITH A SPACIOUS INTERIOR—and practically built the rest of the car around it! Here is room to "room around" in—plenty of room to let the human body take positions that are natural and therefore comfortable.

TIRING? YES! Doctors agree that people can't go for long periods "sitting on their spines" without becoming tired, irritable. Dodge did something about this, too!

AN-HI RELAXING! Dodge "knee level" seats, shown above, put the entire body in a natural position . . . with full leg support for restful, all-day comfort.

"NECK-CRICKING" CONTOURS ARE ALREADY OLD-FASHIONED. The new Dodge, shorter, narrower and lower, gives you more elbow room . . . leg room . . . head room . . . that today's bigger Americans will WELCOME!

DODGE ROOMINESS IS ROOM ALL AROUND. . . The new Dodge, shorter, narrower and lower, gives you more elbow room . . . leg room . . . head room . . . that today's bigger Americans will WELCOME!

LOWER ON THE OUTSIDE . . . Higher on the Inside • SHORTER ON THE OUTSIDE . . . Longer on the Inside
NARROWER ON THE OUTSIDE . . . Wider on the Inside

By ARCHIE JOSELYN

Chapter 6

Having read this brief epistle, Rivers lifted the shield of the lantern, touched the edge of the paper to the candle-flame, and watched it consume.

Good weather favored them. Martinez took upon himself the full handling of the ship. He was capable, but by the second day, Rivers knew that he did not like him, and that the dislike was mutual.

De Villavac, the second officer, was a likable sort. At least for a Spaniard, Rivers conceded grudgingly.

That left him free to entertain Donna Dolores. Seeing her radiant beauty under the full light of day, fair skin underlain by roses, he knew that he was playing with fire. Both of them, perhaps, though she had no way of knowing it.

He waited anxiously for her scrutiny with the sun full in his face, but there was no shadow of doubt. Probably she had first been in love with something more dream than real. With a man so dimly remembered that the years had made hazy the details. Now, as irony would have it, he fulfilled the requirements of that dream, and in her mind there was no question.

What the future might hold was obscure, unpromising enough. But he would play his part as well as he knew, since he could not do other. That much he owed to her.

By the second evening, he knew that his first suspicions had been well-founded. He was playing with fire, indeed—fire which threatened to consume him. Her own devotion had kindled an answering flame in him—the more fierce, because never before had a woman meant anything to him.

Grand Isle was a pirate stronghold. It guarded the mouth of Barataria Bay, a graveyard of captured ships. As they approached, they discovered a great, black-hulled ship which cruised slowly, in contemptuous disregard for pirates or any lesser vessels. Rivers knew it for a British seventy-four, a two-decker. And undoubtedly on the lookout for them.

It was comforting to know that they were not regarded as a legitimate prize of war. Once in range of the seventy-four's broadside, the decision would not be long in doubt.

The Britisher signaled that she was sending a boat across to them, and they waited, both ships hove-to, a quarter-mile of water separating them. The boat came, pulled lustily with a short thick-set officer who watched with folded arm and forbidding gaze. He came aboard, received with full honors, and stared haughtily about. Rivers advanced to meet him.

"You are this—this Gonzales who is not a Spaniard?" he inquired, speaking with the hot-potato accent used by certain English exquisites. It was deliberately effrontery, but closer to the truth than he guessed. "You might say so, sir," Rivers conceded. "To whom have I the honor of addressing myself?"

The officer jerked his head toward the big frigate.

"Does it matter? There are my credentials."

"And excellent ones," Rivers smiled. "No doubt it saves embarrassment in certain instances."

The officer goggled suspiciously, not quite certain whether he was being ribbed or not.

"Shall we have a glass of wine in my cabin?" Rivers added, and let the way.

"I am Davenant," the Englishman blurted, as Rivers filled his glass. He looked uncomfortable. "Gerald Davenant."

"You're going into New Orleans—and past?"

"That is the plan."

"Rotten nonsense," he shouted. "I'd never have agreed had it been left to me. But the more damage you can do, the better. I think that's all that needs to be said."

They waited while the two-decker's sails grew low on the horizon, and were just getting under way

But it was like a city of the dead. Or rather, a man in a trance. Power and vigor was there, held in leash. The edict of Napoleon had cut the arteries of trade, were slowly strangling it. Those were as much its life-blood as they were vital to the lands north and east, drained by the tide of the broad Ohio and the far reaches of the Mississippi.

The pirates of Barataria sought to make up for the loss, the French made a show of the might of empire. But with the blockading British navy prowling the seas, most of it made an empty gesture.

Word of the arrival of the "Lovely Maria," of his own coming, had run ahead. At the Royal, he was assured that his old rooms were in readiness. The name of Don Fernando Gonzales was one to conjure with, here in New Orleans. No one, whom he met casually in the next few hours, seemed to have any suspicion that Rivers was less than he professed to be.

He spent the day in a leisurely survey of the nearer parts of the town, and on a shopping tour with Donna Dolores. Though the shops were well supplied and eager to sell—silks and jewels, velvet and silver-plate. Don Fernando had provided ample funds.

The following afternoon, Rivers sought out Donna Dolores.

"There are a few matters which I must attend to," he explained. "I hope that you will not be too bored with the town until I return."

"I'm sure that I'll enjoy the town," she assured him. "But hurry back."

The house of the Montforts was well off by itself, surrounded by a great, mossy wall made more formidable by an iron fence along its top, spiked in ugly array. High iron gates opened as the carriage rolled up, closed again with a clang behind them. The grounds were spacious but gloomy, a wide driveway leading up to a massive, moat-like house, running between moss-hung trees.

Mounting excitement was in Rivers, expressed in a sprightlier step, a more pronounced mockery to his smile. Life, in his philosophy, was not a thing to be cherished but a bright coin to be spent. If in the spending it brought him face to face with death, that was in the nature of things. Life, as he had discovered, was a friend, but death could be as well—a bright angel at the gate.

Which might open other doors, now hidden, to wider vistas, more suited to the scope of his talent. He would never shrink back from the discovery of that door!

Chapter 8

The lackey who drove the coach pulled up with a flourish. The native rock of the big house, quarried from somewhere in Western hills, had weathered into the massive look of centuries. Another servant hastened to open the door of the carriage.

Rivers stepped down, carelessly retelling the cloak about his shoulders, so that it showed theommel of his sword. Legs wide apart he stood to survey the place, and it came to him that escape, in case of need, might not be easy. This House of Montfort was built to keep intruders out—and to shut safely in what ever secrets these walls might hold.

Vines grew stoutly up the sides of the house, moss clung in shady places. Feudal traditions, the smell of dungeons had been transplanted here from some ancient and blood-soaked spot of Europe. Here was the hint of rack and torture-chamber.

Rivers swaggered ahead, correctly judging that Don Fernando would do likewise in such a moment, if only to hide the quaking of his knees. The great door was thrown open and he strode into a high dark hall. A shaggy buffalo head frowned down at him, flanked by a snarling grizzly bear, so well stuffed that it was rank with death, strangely alive.

The door to a huge library stood open, and there a committee of reception was gathered. More animal heads looked down. Reptiles, rattlesnake and moccasin, above the empty fireplace. They seemed an index to the sort of people who would inhabit this house.

There were eight men in the room, and one woman. Rivers' eyes ranged to the woman. He had been strongly aware of her from the first moment. No man could be in the same room with her and fail to be. She was tall but graceful, her hair a light pure silver, her eyes greenish.

Four of the men were slaves, ebony giants who stood motionless behind the chairs of their masters. Flamboyantly dressed, no two alike, in scarlet and crimson and purple and gold. Each wore a sash, and in each sash was stuck a sword—not the conventional weapon, but a broadbladed, ugly curved scimitar—such weapons as had been in high favor in the days of Charlemagne.

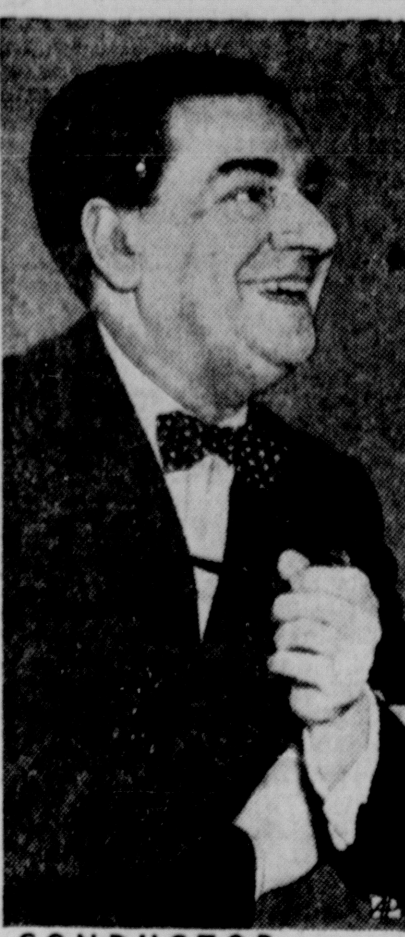

If the slaves were bizarre, their masters were no less so. A throne-like chair stood in the center, with lesser chairs to flank it. The fourth chair, not in place, not filled, its owner standing in front of it, like a hound frothing on the leash. Because of this ill-restrained impatience, he drew a second look from Rivers.

He was darker than the others, as though his blood were a mixed and riotous strain. Yet he was like them in high cheekbones, a great beak of a nose, and dark hair with a suggestion of yellow flaring through. He stood six feet and a quarter, overtopping everyone else in the room, massive in proportion, but cat-like on the balls of his feet.

Like the slaves, he was flamboyantly dressed, whereas the other men were somberly clad. Unlike them, his eyes were cat-yellow, and his was a great broadsword. Such a blade as the Highlanders had used with devastating effect against the French at Quebec, in the days of Rivers' father.

The man in the great chair was speaking—a huge man, gross with flesh, chair-ridden by the weight of his own bulk. A man with snow-white hair above florid cheeks, who wore a short straight sword, such as the Carthaginians had used in the hey-day of their threat to ancient Rome.

"So you keep your word, Don Fernando," he asked, his voice deep, richly melodious. "You keep your word. Ah well, courage is a strange fruit—when the reason is sufficiently impelling."

CONDUCTOR—Eduard Van Beinum (above), 47-year-old conductor of the famous Concertgebouw, of Holland, has been appointed conductor of the London Philharmonic Orchestra.

"Far be it from the Montforts to lack in hospitality to a brave man. In three score years and ten, I, Duval Montfort, have never lacked hospitality. Eh, Diknon, David?"

Rivers' eyes flicked to the others who were seated. Diknon was like his father, big, though not yet gross. Unlike him, he had red hair. David was younger, almost slender, graceful. But his right foot was set at an odd angle, the leg above twisted and shrunken. In his face also was a thwarted, twisted look, as though resentment of his deformity had seared a ravaged soul.

Having given this pronouncement,

IDENTIFY BODY OF U.S. OFFICER

Athens, Feb. 19 (AP)—A mutilated body found in a ravine near Karpentisi has been identified positively as that of Lt. Col. Selden R. Edner, American Airforce officer. The American Mission announced Friday that the identification had been made from medical records.

Edner, 30, of San Jose, Calif., was an unarmed observer aboard a Greek Royal Air Force plane which made a forced landing in Karpentisi January 21.

He served in Europe during the war, both with the American Eagle Squadron of the British Royal Air Force and with the U. S. Airforce, and was awarded the British and American Distinguished Flying crosses, the British Star and the American Air medal with Three Clusters.

He flew 150 missions over France and Germany and was a prisoner in Germany from March, 1944, to April, 1945.

The Greek guerrilla radio said soon after the crash landing of the plane at Karpentisi that Edner had died of injuries sustained in the crash. The Communist radio broadcast a letter to his wife, who was in Athens, blaming his death on "Imperialists."

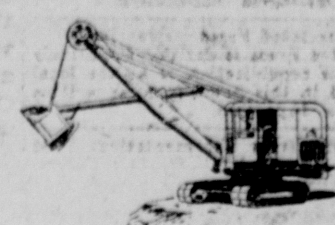

Edner was assigned here as an observer with the United States Army group air detachment under the Greek Aid program.

SEEK TO WIPE OUT STATE'S '47 LABOR LAWS

Harrisburg, Feb. 19 (AP)—Eleven Democratic senators were behind a move today to wipe out Pennsylvania's 1947 labor laws.

Sen. Elmer Holland (D-Allegheny), a leader of the move termed the 1947 GOP Republican legislation as the "Duff-Taft-Hartley laws."

"They deprive the worker of his natural rights," Holland declared.

The repeal bills introduced Wednesday in the senate would remove a ban against strikes by public employees, restrictions of picketing to employees of a struck firm, and nullify all other major provisions of the 1947 laws. Also repealed would be the experience rating system of unemployment compensation rates.

The bills also would extend workmen's and occupational disease compensation to cover all accidents and diseases, as well as amend section of the unemployment compensation law. They would establish minimum and maximum unemployment benefits of $20 to $35, weekly and extend the coverage.

Other new Senate bills would: establish retirement system for state institutional employees under the state employees retirement fund—George Wade (R-Cumberland); extend provisions of the state police retirement system to include employees of state penal and correctional institutions—George Wade (R-Cumberland); and extend Saturday night closing of taprooms from 12 midnight to 2 a. m. Sunday—Patrick J. O'Toole (D-Luzerne).

New House bills would: pay board bills of prisoners serving sentences for fish or game violations—Edwin W. Tompkins (R-Cameron); allow osteopathic physicians to commit mental patients to state mental hospitals—Charles C. Smith (R-Phila.); increase from two cents to five cents an acre the payment in-lieu-of-taxes by the state to school districts in which state parks are located—Robert R. Clapper (R-Bedford).

Ban the sale of cigarettes at less than cost as a fair trade measure—Adam T. Bower (R-Northumberland); authorize an investigation into conditions at Moyamensing prison, Philadelphia—Louis J. Amaranda, George T. Guarnieri, James J. ## Young Lady Loses Her Skirt On Bus Hamburg, Germany, Feb. 19 (AP)—Street cars or subways crowded in your town? Feel sometimes you're losing your hat or coat in the jam?

A conductor in a Hamburg street car ceased his fare collecting job for a minute to holler to the passengers: "Anyone lost a skirt?"

He held the garment daintily between thumb and forefinger.

A young lady quickly checked underneath her coat. She blushed, buttoned up her coat, shrieked, grabbed the skirt and jumped off the car.

Riding With Russell

The effect of this is to twist the plugs and change their gaps.

Q. The oil level gauge on my car shows empty regardless of how much oil I put into the crankcase. What do you think is wrong and how can I correct this?—W. M. B.

A. Your engine has a mechanical oil level gauge using a float. Apparently this is stuck or the float has come off. The oil pan must be taken down to repair this.

Q. Will valve oils check a valve that is warped?—R. R. T.

A. These special oils are seldom effective where the valve itself is damaged. But I would always try it anyway. Often what is diagnosed as is just a sticky stem.

Mr. Russell will answer questions regarding the safe care and operation of your car. Just address him at 254 Fern street, West Hartford 7, Connecticut, and enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope for a personal reply. There is no charge.

Ad Executive Heads Easter Seal Drive

Harrisburg, Feb. 19 (AP)—William C. Arthur, Pittsburgh advertising executive Friday was named chairman of the 1949 Easter Seal campaign in Pennsylvania.

The drive, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Society for Crippled Children and Adults, will be conducted from March 17 to April 17.

Dr. S. L. Grossman, Harrisburg, society president, said Arthur will be assisted in the drive by P. H. Dyatt, Catasauqua; MacDonald Heeber, Scranton; Edward M. Lillis, Erie, and William C. Maxwell, Wilkes-Barre.

A state-wide goal of $400,000 has been set for this year's Easter Seal sale, Dr. Grossman said. The amount will be used to continue the work of helping some 30,000 crippled children and additional thousands of handicapped adults in the Commonwealth.

Moscow, Feb. 19 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's appointment as chairman of the joint chiefs of staff is receiving considerable attention from the Soviet Press. Most newspapers published a dispatch credited to a Washington correspondent of the London Observer, saying the appointment was connected with formation of an American general staff to deal with planning military aid to Europe.

TAKE POLITICS OUT OF U.S.P.O. HOOVER URGES

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—The Hoover Commission said Friday the Post Office Department should be taken out of politics.

The Postmaster General, it said, should not be allowed to head a national political committee, and the postmasters throughout the country should be career men chosen from within the postal service and not subject to confirmation by the Senate.

These were the highlights of a report to Congress by the 12-member commission Congress created last year to report on organization of the Executive branch of the government. Former President Herbert Hoover is chairman.

Lists Eight Faults
The report on the Postoffice Department was the fourth of more than 15 due to reach Congress by March 15.

These eight things were listed by the commission under the heading of "What Is Wrong With The Post Office?":

A. The administrative structure is obsolete and overcentralized.

E. A maze of outmoded laws, regulations and traditions freezes progress and stifles proper administration.

C. The post office "lacks the freedom and flexibility essential to good business operation."

D. Rates have not kept pace with wages and other costs, and rate-making machinery is inadequate.

E. The service is used to hide subsidies.

F. Political appointments of first, second and third class postmasters and certain other officials produces inefficiency "and militates against the incentives of promotion."

G. Methods of budgeting, accounting and appropriation are unsuited to a business of the size and character of the post service.

H. Recurring annual operating deficits have been caused by circumstances "mostly beyond the control" of the department "and can be remedied only by strong and courageous action."

The commission offered these remedies to correct the faults it found:

The Postmaster General should continue as a cabinet member appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, but should not be an official of a political party. (The present Postmaster General, Jesse M. Donaldson, is a career postal official and is not head of a political party. Some of his predecessors have been chairmen of the Democratic and Republican national committees.)

An experienced executive, preferably chosen from the service, should be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate as director of posts. He would be the operating head of the postoffice. The Postmaster General would determine departmental and public policies.

Recommend 15 Regions
The postal service should be decentralized into 15 regions under regional directors and district superintendents.

Confirmation of postmasters by the Senate should be abolished, and "the post office should be taken out of politics." An estimated 2,000 postal employees "are in fact politically appointed," and "a deleterious effect has been to create a political barrier to promotion within the service and thus deprive it of a great incentive to good work." The commission suggested that the postmasters be selected, as far as possible, from the local community and in consultation with local leaders. They would be subject to merit standards set by the post office and approved by the Civil Service Commission.

The fire broke out in the cabin last Thursday night from an overheated stove, and Bucknell carried his 80-year-old wife to the barn. He then wrapped his feet in rags and walked through drifts to the nearest farm, a mile away.

The story came to light here on Friday when Ralph Rowlandson of Porquus Junction, 30 miles east of here, came to Timmins to enlist aid for the couple. The Bucknell farm is about five miles from Porquus Junction.

Rowlandson said the couple lost their clothing, furniture and $180—their life savings, which had been kept in a tin can.

Asks Tax Break On Gifts To Firemen

Washington, Feb. 19 (AP)—Persons who contribute to the support of volunteer fire departments would get an income tax break under a bill introduced by Senator Edward Martin (R-Pa.).

Contributions to volunteer fire companies would be deductible for income tax purposes under the bill introduced yesterday. It is identical to one introduced in the House by Rep. Boggs (R-De.).

Martin said Pennsylvania alone has 4,000 volunteer fire organizations with 200,000 members.

He said municipal taxes paid for the support of professional fire departments are deductible, therefore contributions for the support of volunteer companies should be considered in like manner.

The economic loss from accidents on American farms is estimated at one billion dollars a year.

Harrisburg, Feb. 18 (AP)—Gov. James Duff denied Thursday that he made "any deal whatsoever" with the Allegheny County Democratic organization to gain support of the administration tax program.

Asked if he had received any offer of support from Pittsburgh in return for backing for Allegheny county legislation, Duff told newsmen "No sir, I did not."

The economic loss from accidents on American farms is estimated at one billion dollars a year.

HAT OF GOLD—Styled after an ancient Gallic helmet, this golden cap, topped by diamond-studded wings, is valued at one million French francs by Mellerio, Paris jeweler.

CHARGE HE SENT POISONED CAKE TO NEIGHBOR Littlestown

Chambersburg, Pa., Feb. 19 (AP)—Ralph H. McMullen, 45, of Mercersburg, was held here today on a charge of sending a cake laden with rat poison to a neighbor.

The charge was filed yesterday before U. S. Commissioner Edwin H. Strite by Police Chief Michael Wassel, of Mercersburg and Postal Inspector C. E. Moo, of York.

Moo said McMullen signed a statement admitting the act. He was charged with sending poison food through the mail with intent to harm, injure or murder.

The postal inspector quoted McMullen as saying he sent the cake to John A. Ensminger, of Mercersburg, after Ensminger refused to allow him to attend the funeral of a niece.

The niece, Pauline Keel, 21, of Bedford, R. D. 4, was found dead of carbon monoxide poisoning in a station wagon at Mercersburg January 4. Also dead in the car was Stanley Barges, 28, of Mercersburg.

Moo quoted McMullen as saying that he was hired by Ensminger shortly before Christmas to repair a kitchen wall with a mixture of rat poison and plaster. The niece was visiting in the Ensminger home at the time. McMullen was about to start the job when he noticed a spoonful of poison missing. Shortly afterwards, Moo quoted him as saying, the girl asked him to mail a cake to her parents.

Moo said McMullen took the cake but did not mail it. Instead he sent it to Ensminger after he was refused permission to attend the Keel girl's funeral.

Ensminger turned the cake over to the police after he tasted the frosting and found it bitter.

Rescues Invalid Wife; Gets Aid After Fire

Timmins, Ont., Feb. 19 (AP)—Glad only in underwear in 44-below-zero weather, 68-year-old Thomas Bucknell walked through snow to obtain-aid for his invalid wife when their log cabin farm home burned to the ground.

The fire broke out in the cabin last Thursday night from an overheated stove, and Bucknell carried his 80-year-old wife to the barn. He then wrapped his feet in rags and walked through drifts to the nearest farm, a mile away.

The story came to light here on Friday when Ralph Rowlandson of Porquus Junction, 30 miles east of here, came to Timmins to enlist aid for the couple. The Bucknell farm is about five miles from Porquus Junction.

Rowlandson said the couple lost their clothing, furniture and $180—their life savings, which had been kept in a tin can.

Harrisburg, Feb. 19 (AP)—The controversial bill to permit the sale of colored oleomargarine may reach the floor of the state Senate next week.

Sen. George B. Scarlett (R-Chester) said a Senate committee will probably approve the legislation early next week. Administration forces in the Senate were reported to have brought pressure for early committee action.

The measure, introduced by Sen. Louis Farrell (R-Phila.) would allow the sale of colored oleo in Pennsylvania and would also repeal the $2 license fee for all handlers of oleo.

However, Scarlett said the bill probably will be amended to retain the license provision. Restaurants also will continue to be required to notify customers they are serving oleo, if they do.

Meanwhile, opposition again arose from the state Council of Farm Organizations and the Pennsylvania Association of Farmer Cooperatives. At a meeting here yesterday, the two groups reiterated their approval of the 1947 oleomargarine law in its present form.

The law's objective, they said, "is to protect consumers from fraud and deception in being sold or served oleo when they are led to believe they are buying butter."

Accidents on U. S. farms kill some 19,000 persons annually.

Girl Scout News Items

"Come Along With Us" is the theme for the Girl Scout birthday celebrations to be held on March 12. Individual troops are planning special observances. Parents will be invited.

One of the many programs that network radio will do in honor of the birthday will be the George Burns-Gracie Allen show on Thursday, March 10, over NBC 8:30 to 9 p. m.

The Girl Scout calendar for the balance of February contains these dates: February 20-27, National Brotherhood week; 21, Pennsylvania Camping association meeting at Harrisburg; 22, Girl Scout Thinking day and training course at Cash-town; 24, training course, York Springs.

The 30th national Girl Scout convention will be held in Milwaukee November 15-18. Adams county is planning to "be there." It has not received its quota yet, but expects to send that number to Milwaukee when the information is received.

The registrar at the county office needs correct information on all registrations sent in. These have to be forwarded to national headquarters. They should be in the county office before the 15th of each month.

The Adams county Girl Scout membership totals 455 girls and 179 leaders and volunteers. Total membership in the county and in outlying possessions is 1,672,495, organized into 61,727 troops.

THREE DIE AS PLANE CRASHES

Johnstown, Pa., Feb. 19 (AP)—Three men died in an air force training plane that crashed in a wooded section eight miles northwest of Johnstown.

Rescuers broke trail through tangled underbrush to bring out one body last night. The two remaining bodies are to be carried from the scene today.

The plane was missing since Tuesday. It had been located by search planes yesterday.

The craft, on a flight from Washington, D. C., to Pittsburgh, apparently ran out of fuel. It smashed trees and brush before breaking up. A small fire burned out the cockpit where the three bodies were found huddled together.

Dead were Lt. William K. Simmers, 30, Bethlehem, Pa., Lt. Merl Hagenbuch, 30, and Staff Sgt. Norman Bogert, 32, both of Allentown, Pa.

DIES AT EASTON
Easton, Pa., Feb. 18 (AP)—Cuthbert H. Latta, prominent in Northampton county political and civic life, died Thursday in the Hotel Easton shortly before he was to attend a testimonial dinner. He was 82. Latta was a son of Pennsylvania's first lieutenant governor under the present constitution. At the time of his death he was clerk of Northampton county Orphans court.

Indicted Builder Is Caught In Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Feb. 19 (AP)—A seven-month search for a builder indicted on housing fraud charges, ended Friday when Carlo L. Anselmi, 31, was arrested in his mother's Pittsburgh home.

Anselmi, of nearby McKees Rocks, was head of Superba Homes, a pre-fabricated housing enterprise. An Allegheny county grand jury indicted him last July on fraudulent conversion charges and last week a federal grand jury indicted him on mail fraud charges.

Disappointed would-be home buyers accused Anselmi of accepting $42,000 in down payments without delivering homes.

The search for Anselmi had ex-

AMERICANS ARE CRITICIZED FOR INDIFFERENCE

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)
General Omar N. Bradley, United States army chief of staff and one of the outstanding commanders in World War II, preaches a powerful sermon on the dangers of "delinquent citizenship" today in an article in Collier's weekly.

As a matter of fact, this ordinarily quiet-spoken soldier rolls up his sleeves and administers a sound drubbing to shirkers. The burden of his rebuke is that we Americans can lose the battle against stateism if we fail to make our contributions to the welfare of the home, the school, the church and the community. That means everybody—not just the other fellow, but you and me.

The general is dealing with such a vital truth, in such a forceful manner, that this column welcomes the opportunity to report his views. He imparts the feeling that it's high time for us to take stock. He points out that our struggle against the forces of evil may be long and that "ideas are as important as the atom bomb." He sums it up bluntly like this:

"First Column" Danger
"Our danger lies not so much in

New Oxford

New Oxford—Mrs. Henry M. Haar has returned to her home at Pine Run after spending a time with her son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Allen W. Kelly, East Berlin, recuperating from a hip fracture sustained last summer from which she is slowly improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold W. Sanders, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Felix Sanders, this place, have moved from East Berlin where they made their home for more than two years and now reside in Biglerville where they both teach.

Local young people were among the large number of guests at a Valentine party given during the week at the home of Miss Gloria Neuman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clair Neuman, McSherrystown.

The local Lions club conducted its bi-monthly meeting during the week. "Community Betterment" is the theme of the present Lions activities.

Thomas Aumen was a prize winner in the elimination dance which was a feature of the Valentine dance conducted at Hanover this week by the Junior Y-Teens organization. The intermediate group of the local Girl Scouts have been working on a project of the writing and presentation of a play.

Edwin Snyder, New Chester, who has not been well for some time, is reported improved although able to be about.

The new house being erected on Hanover street for Mr. and Mrs. Chester Hoffman is rapidly nearing completion. Mr. and Mrs. Hoffman are former residents of town, but moved to East Berlin about three years ago because of his employment there.

Curtis S. Sponseller, who has completed 35 years as teacher of the Men's Bible class of the First Lutheran church, was tendered a banquet on Thursday evening by the class to mark the anniversary. The Always Faithful class of the church prepared and served the banquet at the church rooms.

Long Vigil Ends As Infant Dies

Fredericktown, Pa., Feb. 19 (AP)—The round-the-clock vigil maintained by Ray and Dolly Bailey beside a home-made oxygen tent has ended with the death of their seven-month-old daughter, Kerry Elaine.

The baby girl died Thursday, 11 days after an army bomber flew her home from Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore. Doctors said Kerry—born with a malformed heart—was too weak for an operation.

The physicians told her parents all they could do was to give her oxygen, build her up if they could and then bring her back for an operation.

The Baileys converted their daughter's crib into an oxygen tent, using a plastic table cloth. Then they began a 24-hour vigil, taking turns watching the gauge. Their efforts were in vain as the 10-pound girl died Thursday. The Baileys have another child, Karen, four.

a fifth column whose enmity is avowed. It lies in a first column of well-meaning American citizens x x x who are 100 per cent Americans in their daily protestations and 10 per cent citizens in their daily routine of neglect."

General Bradley assesses the faults of the younger generation against the elders. The failure of the elders to meet the demands of citizenship is responsible, he believes, for "political immaturity, economic ignorance, philosophical indifference and spiritual insolvency" of many American youth.

That strikes home to those of us who have children just arriving at maturity. It seems to me that the younger generation is reaching for ideas as youth never has before. Unhappily that search is being conducted in the unhealthy atmosphere which follows any great war and which is especially bad these days as the result of the division of mankind into two hostile ideological blocs.

Small wonder Bradley reports that psychologists tell him the post-war generation is undisciplined, jealously aware of rights but not of responsibilities, mercenary and antagonistic to authority. Clearly this is the time, as the general indicates, when the elders must turn to and help youth adjust itself.

Can Lose By Default
My personal observation is that the younger generation is actively trying to find its feet. I have two young folk of my own who are placing their problems before me. Many of those problems relate to the question of where our duties lie as citizens. And how much greater are the problems of the youths who have been away to war and have come back to adjust themselves to a new world.

General Bradley shows his upbringing as a Missouri farm boy when he uses the homely expression that what this country needs is some old-fashioned willingness "to do the chores"—a sense of responsibility. He further says:

"At a time when peoples throughout the world are being courted by an aggressive stateism that would have them abdicate their personal share in government and entrust their welfare to rule by clique, the American people must put their faith in not less—but more—personal responsibility in the affairs of their community and nation. X X X

"A democracy such as ours cannot be defeated in this struggle; it can only lose by default."

MAN WANTED IN $150,000 JEWEL THEFTS CAUGHT

White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 19 (AP)—An unruffled 28-year-old Canadian who allegedly used society pages for tips on jewelry robberies was brought here Friday from Cleveland to face charges of looting wealthy Westchester county homes.

Gerard Graham Dennis, the dapper Canadian, had been hunted for two years.

These things came to light about him at once:

Police said he had $1,400 in cash and $18,000 worth of unset diamonds in his possession. They reported also that he had in his wallet a list of 22 top movie stars and their secret addresses as a "list of prospects."

At a Beverly Hills, Calif., apartment which he gave as his home address, authorities found $100,000 worth of jewelry and furs valued at $20,000.

Montreal authorities, describing him as one of the greatest burglars of all time, said he was wanted for $150,000 in thefts.

Detective Lt. Maurice Kelly of New Rochelle, N. Y., who brought Dennis here from Cleveland, said the suspect had admitted numerous robberies from wealthy homes in suburban Westchester county.

"He's co-operating 100 per cent," a spokesman for the Westchester district attorney's office said. Dennis was being questioned at the district attorney's office.

Hunted Since '46
Kelly explained he had been hunting the Canadian since a New Rochelle man was wounded by an assailant Sept. 20, 1946.

The police lieutenant said these names of movie stars were included on the list found in Dennis' pocket: Jack Benny, Bette Davis, Eddie Cantor, Edgar Bergen, Dorothy Lamour, Harold Lloyd, Mary Pickford, William Powell, Kay Francis and "Olivia De — — —" presumably Olivia De Havilland.

An attractive 22-year-old model, Gloria Horowitz, supplied information which helped lead to Dennis' arrest, police said. They reported Miss Horowitz met him at a cocktail lounge in New York city in 1947. He told her he was wealthy but needed cash and asked her to pawn some jewelry for him in Philadelphia, police said.

Two Others Held
Miss Horowitz was arrested there when she tried to pawn the jewelry but later was released and gave police a full description of Dennis and his New York hideouts.

At Dennis' Beverly Hills apartment, police arrested a woman occupant who said she was Betty V. Ritchie, 24. Police identified her as a former Toronto school teacher. She was booked on suspicion of burglary.

Also taken into custody there was the occupant of an adjacent apartment, Julius Bruck, 24, a jeweler. He was booked on a suspicion of receiving stolen property.
